COVID-19 spike has leveled off locally

BY MARK CAMPBELL

The brief spike in the number of new COVID-19 cases reported last month in Jefferson County looks to have come and gone with those numbers flattening just like local heath care officials hoped would keep the virus pandemic in check.

Jefferson County Health Officer Dr. John Hossler said he expected to see an increase in the number of COVID-19 reports following the Fourth of July weekend when crowd gathering and holiday travel would likely increase exposure to the infection — outsiders visiting locally and local people visiting other communities — but the increase quickly flattened.

"There haven't really been any surprises," Hossler said. "We expected to see a spike a couple of weeks after the Fourth of July. The concern was whether we'd see that spike continue but it seems to have settled down and leveled off and that's good. That's what we wanted to see."

Jefferson County is now up to 184 positive cases with 3,900 residents tested but that's since the pandemic began locally back in March. Hossler said one thing that's helped control the outbreak is people following recommended guidelines for hand washing, social distancing, staying at home and wearing masks when in public.

The next hurdle the community faces is with the reopening of schools, which is now well underway, but Hossler said all local school corporations spent a

Trimble considers options for dilapidated annex

BY COLLIN OVERTON

Trimble County Fiscal Court on Monday voted to advertise for bids to both demolish and preserve the former county annex building located across from the county courthouse.

The dilapidated building, located at the corner of Church and West streets in Bedford, has served as an annex building for the county and is the former offices of the Trimble Banner. The structure is in desperate need of demolition or some rehab, Judge Executive Todd Pollock said during Monday's meeting over Zoom. With a wall

City looks to replace Red, White & Boo with Halloween Festival

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Madison's Board of Public Works and Safety kicked off planning for a new Halloween Festival to be put on the city this fall.

The board approved a contract with Honey Hill Farm to provide a petting zoo for a new Halloween Festival that will take the place of the Red, White & Boo celebration that had been held at the Brown Gym for the past decade.

The new festival will take place on Main Street between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 31

154th Chelsea Jubilee closed to public

Tradition to continue despite social-distancing restrictions

BY MARK CAMPBELL

With 153 years in the books, no other annual festival in Indiana has been around longer than Smyrna Township's annual Chelsea Jubilee and it's going to stay that way even though some changes will be necessitated due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

This year's 154th Annual Chelsea Jubilee, scheduled for the first weekend in September, will be closed to the general public due to crowd and social distancing concerns aimed and keeping people safe and limiting the spread of the coronavirus.

Instead, Chelsea Jubilee officers, directors and their family members will meet on Saturday, Oct. 3, and hold the traditional opening ceremony followed by one of their annual meetings,

Woman charged in domestic shooting

A 39-year-old Switzerland County man was shot in the leg late Thursday night and his 30-year-old girlfriend has been arrested in the incident.

Switzerland County Sheriff's Deputies were responding to a report of a person shot in at a residence in the 3800 block of Catalpa Street near Patriot at 10:45 p.m. Thursday when hey found Jeremiah M. Powell suffering from a gunshot wound to the upper left leg.

Powell was treated at the scene by the Switzerland County EMS and transported to University of Cincinnati Hospital with a serious injury.

An investigation determined that Powell's girlfriend, Stacey D. Henderson, was responsible for the shooting and she was charged with aggravated battery, a Level 3 felony; domestic battery with a deadly weapon and domestic battery resulting in serious bodily injury, both Level 5 felonies; and domestic battery in the presence of a child and pointing a firearm, both Level 6 felonies.

Henderson made an initial appearance in Switzerland County Circuit Court on Monday and bond was set at $10,000 cash. She remains incarcerated at this time.

Anyone with information on the incident is asked to contact Detective Joe Spilman at 812-427-3636.

Pilots safely land on Rykers Ridge after engine trouble

Pilots flying to Madison Municipal Airport Sunday made an emergency landing in a field on Rykers Ridge after experiencing engine problems mid-flight.

Airport Manager Brent Spry said two men, both from Arkansas, were on their way back to Madison from Ohio when the engine began losing speed in the area of Rykers Ridge.

The pilots managed to locate a large field close to Rykers Ridge Baptist Church and conduct an emergency landing, stopping safely in the field without any damage.

Neither occupant was injured, Spry said.

After landing, the pilots called Madison Municipal Airport and requested to be picked up. The airport helped them rent a vehicle to drive back to Arkansas, then disassembled the wings from the plane and towed it back to the airport for inspection.

The pilots did "exactly what they were supposed to do" given the situation, said Spry.

"The guys made a perfectly textbook landing. They picked a perfect field for it, it was close to where they could get help, they had cell phone signal, and we were able to literally just pull the aircraft over to the parking lot and pack it up," Spry said.

great deal of time and effort coming up with a plan for the safest reopening possible. However, how successful that proves to be may take a week or two to determine as officials wait to see if there is another spike.

"There have been a few complaints and concerns voiced to the health department but the schools have been very receptive and very responsive to that," Hossler said.

Now that the City of Madison is offering free COVID-19 testing, managed by OptumServe, with no referrals or symptoms necessary, more people than ever have the opportunity to best tested. Hossler said King's Daughters' Health, which has tested from early on with referrals, should have similar testing available within the next few weeks and could even consider house for testing at night for those who find it difficult to get in to be tested during the daytime.

"We are awaiting some site specific data about the center but I continue to advocate for broad testing and we just made arrangements for the center to remain open until Friday October 2." said Madison Mayor Bob Courtney. "There is a lot to learn from the data that can help us shape public policy. It's not surprising that total cumulative positive cases continue to rise as we expand testing. The question becomes, what are we learning from that data to make our community safer and our economy better?"

There have been two deaths to date in Jefferson County, one of just 24 counties in the state with that low of a number of fatalities. Meanwhile, nearby Switzerland County is one of just nine counties in Indiana with no COVID deaths. So far there have been 60 positive cases in Switzerland County out of 1,127 residents tested.

In Kentucky, Carroll County is up to 170 cases with two deaths while Trimble County has reported 35 cases with no deaths.

Indiana has 81,006 total cases statewide with 2,926 deaths with 914,633 tested. Kentucky has 39,315 cases total with 813 deaths so far.

with booths and events for children. The petting zoo itself will be held at Bicentennial Park.

Hannah Fagen, director of community relations for the city, stressed that the event is still in the "very early" planning stages but she is hopeful of a big turnout.

"We've already talked to a few businesses and we're hoping to have a lot of community involvement," Fagen told the board. "This is a revamp of the Red, White and Blue event and we can't wait."

Fagen said the event will be subject to guidelines handed down by the governor's office in relation to the COVID-19 pandemic and all plans are flexible.

In other business, Madison Police Chief John Wallace was before the board to discuss the possibility of adding a three-way stop sign at the intersection of Green Road and Maple Street as well as a "speed table" in front of the Rucker Sports Complex. Wallace is seeking public input on both options and will present his final recommendation to the board at its meeting in two weeks.

City Utility Manager Brian Jackson also announced that the governor's moratorium on utility disconnects expired last Friday. Jackson said disconnects downtown will begin on Aug. 26 and on the hilltop starting on Sept. 16. There will be no charge for reconnection but all or part of the bill must be paid for reconnection.

The board also approved the closing of Vaughn Drive between West Street and Vine Street on Sept. 24 for the United Way Kick Off event.

The next meeting of the Board of Public Works and Safety will be Monday, Sept. 8.

caving in on the east side and another bowing outward on the west side, the building poses a safety hazard to the family living next door and shouldn't be left to keep deteriorating, he said.

Having served a number of purposes over the decades on the courthouse square, the building could most certainly be added to the National Register of Historic Places or sold, Pollock said. However, talks with potential buyers over the years indicated no one was interested in actually rehabbing the old annex, and adding the property to the register would make it illegal to tear the building down, he added.

Engineers with the Kentuckiana Regional Planning and Development Agency (KIPDA) have looked at the site and could possibly assist with reimbursement funding, but magistrates agreed that the cost of restoring the building is likely out of the county's reach.

"Even if we got a grant, our part would probably be more than we could afford to restore that building," Magistrate JD Jones said.

Fiscal Court motioned and unanimously voted to advertise to demolish the building. Then, after voting, Magistrate Kirby Melvin mentioned it wouldn't hurt to advertise for restoration, wait for bids to come in and compare that with the cost of demolition a few weeks from now to see how members felt about it. After some discussion, the court voted to also advertise for restoration.

Monday's meeting also provided a forecast into what the November elections could look like in Trimble County. County Clerk Tina Browning said she was on call with the Secretary of State, Governor and State Board of Elections and would once again be needing poll workers and protective equipment in preparation.

Early voting will take place at the courthouse daily in October from 8:30 a.m. to noon, she said, and county residents are encouraged to vote early to free up the volume of mail-in ballots her office has to handle.

To make it safer and easier for mail-in ballots to be turned in, however, Browning requested magistrates approve a drop box from Quality Service Installation out of Bardstown, Kentucky, at a cost of about $7,400 to be installed in the side of the courthouse. The drop box could then be used year-round for bills and other forms, she said.

Magistrates approved the request, optimistic that the purchase can be covered with CARES Act funds since the county didn't budget for it and it is a COVID-related expense.

The county received about $288,000 in CARES Act funding and so far has been reimbursed for about $130,000, Pollock said. CARES Act funding could also cover additional costs for sneeze guards for poll workers and other employees on election day, Browning said.

Browning also requested the magistrate grant an additional hazard pay of $50 to election officers during this year's election, bringing each individual's pay to $200 from $150. Although unsure how many employees she'll have, Browning said she sent out about 70 letters to potential officers in preparation. Magistrates voted in favor of the raise.

Also on Monday, magistrates voted to set up a WiFi hotspot for students to use when learning virtually this fall. Contracting through the Trimble County Public Library, the county will pay $958.12 for 12 months of WiFi at the Trimble County Park and library employees will monitor the site. The county also hopes to restrict what sites people can access when using the site and monitor its use, Pollock said.

Trimble Fiscal Court's next meeting will be at 9 a.m. on Sept. 21.

said board member Eston Smith Monday.

With no public admission, the arts and crafts vendors, music, games and food the display of antique tractors and equipment and antique tractor parade are canceled this year but the ceremony and meeting will keep the group's tradition alive as the oldest continuous community festival in Indiana.

The Jubilee, which had moved around among several locations until finding a permanent home on a six-acre grove of trees in Chelsea Corner in 1973, dates back to at least the 1860s and possibly even prior to the Civil War.

Smith said the group planned to be back in 2021 for the 155th Annual Chelsea Jubilee, when it is hoped all the traditional events and entertainment will be back.

Pacers back to basics as season kicks off

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

It's almost fitting that Switzerland County's football scrimmage on Friday was played in a steady rain. After all, there has been a cloud hanging over this high school sports season since it started earlier this month.

But with any cloud, there is always a silver lining and if there is any program that seems ready to weather the uncertainties of a season like this, it's Switzerland County football.

"Luckily, since we started the program, I have a few tricks up my sleeves to keep the kids interested and keep them focused," Switzerland coach Ryan Jesop said with a laugh. "Back then, it was a way of keeping them distracted from how bad they were. Now, it's a good way to distract them when it comes to the way the schedule is."

Switzerland County has become the poster child for the COVID-19 world. While not facing an outbreak itself, the school saw its first three games of the season canceled due to coronavirus issues at other schools. On Monday afternoon, the school was able to add Noblesville HomeSchool to the schedule for its opener this Saturday but the Pacers' next scheduled game will not be until Sept. 12 when they travel to Edinburgh for their Mid-Indiana Football Conference opener.

Although Switzerland now has an opponent to get ready for this week, they will be off the following two weeks and Jesop knows how precarious the rest of the season will be. So rather than focus on game plans, Jesop said the Pacers will focus on themselves.

"We're going to watch a lot of film on what we do and work on getting better as a team," Jesop said. "A lot of guys like the watch their highlights, but we're going to watch the lowlights as well. You get better watching the lowlights and then you have more highlights to enjoy."

There were few highlights for the Pacers during a scrimmage with Clarksville on Friday night. The Generals' athleticism was too much for Switzerland to overcome and Clarksville rolled to a 36-6 win in the varsity-only action.

Jesop knows that his team will have plenty of work to do coming off the program's best season in school history. The Pacers opened last year with four-straight wins and stood at 5-1 before suffering four-straight losses to end the season.

Graduation robbed the Swiss of many of their top players — including all-conference lineman Zach Weaver — but there is plenty of reason to believe that the Pacers could be in most of their games this season.

Most of the team's top offensive weapons are back, led by senior quarterback Damion Courter, who threw for five touchdowns last year, and senior receiver Hunter Records, who caught a team-high 20 passes and all five of Courter's TDs.

Fellow seniors Nick Gatto and Dakota Wallace will also play bigger roles on offense and Jesop plans to lean on all four to lead his team.

"Those are guys at the skill positions that we're definitely going to count on as well as the guys on the line like Brandon Otter, Tommy Coyne and the two Galbreaths (junior Michael and sophomore Sam)," Jesop said. "The seniors did a really good job of going into the hallways and recruiting the kids back and made everybody feel like they're a part of a family.

"Now, the next step is for those guys to fight through adversity with low numbers and the uncertainty in a season like this. The big thing will be those guys sticking together mentally."

Switzerland opens the season on Saturday at home against Noblesville HomeSchool. Any parent or family member of a football player, cheerleader, or band member who is interested in attending the game must buy a ticket in advance at the front office of the high school by 3 p.m. on Wednesday, after which, all remaining tickets will be open to the public. Each member is limited to four individual tickets and cost per ticket is $6. All ticket sales will cease once the COVID-reduced capacity has been reached.

Rebels open season with 4-0 loss to Corydon

BY COURIER STAFF REPORT

Southwestern's girls soccer team opened the 2020 season with a 4-0 loss at home to Corydon on Saturday.

Corydon scored two goals in each half against a Rebels squad that was missing three returning players, but coach Nancy Totten was pleased with her team's effort.

"With all the safety and uncertainty surrounding of COVID 19, every game is a valued gift. Every one of us was excited for the games to begin," Totten said. "We lost 4-0 but it provided great game experience and learning opportunities. Olivia Bruce, Savannah White, and Jessica Esquivel captained the team. Aleana Meador, new to soccer, played a great first game."

Southwestern, now 0-1, hosts Austin on Wednesday.

Southwestern's Jess Esquivel (7) and Corydon's Jessica Fulk battle for the ball as Southwestern goalie Hannah Sampson waits during the season opener on Saturday.

David Campbell

EDER FIRES 71 AT CHAMPIONS

Keara Eder shot a one-over 71 as both she and the Madison girls golf team placed fifth in the Fuzzy Zoeller Invitational at Champions Pointe on Saturday.

Madison recorded its best 18-hole score of the season, shooting a 393 to place fifth in the 12-team event. That score was behind not only No. 2 Evansville North, which rolled to the win, but Hoosier Hills Conference foes No. 12 Floyd Central (315), No. 19 Bedford North Lawrence (339) and New Albany (351).

"I'm pretty happy the ladies finished in fifth. Evansville, Floyd, and Bedford are all top 20 teams, and New Albany has a very experienced group," Madison coach Jake Shockley said. "I still think we can go lower as a group, though. Although it sure helps when you're number one fires a 71. Right now we're focused on getting all five golfers to be playing well at the same time."

Second-ranked Evansville North rolled to the easy win with all four of its scorers taking the top four individual spots. Eder's 71 was good for fifth overall, the best among non-North golfers.

The four-time state champion Huskies were untouched in rolling to the crown with what is believed to be a school record 271. Chloe Johnson was the medalist with a sizzling 64, Destynie Sheridan had a 67 and Reagan Sohn and Lauren Le each shot 70.

"Keara had a very good round. She's been really impressive the last two tournaments," Shockley said. "Her driver wasn't spectacular for much of the day, but it was good enough to keep her around the fairway with looks at the green. I was really impressed with her work at practice this week working from 60 yards and in.

"It's a big positive that almost all of the returners shot lower than they did last year and only one player was happy with their score."

Madison will take the rest of this week off before hosting its own Madison Invitational at Sunrise Golf Course on Saturday.

REBELS 2ND AT OWN ROUND-ROBIN

Southwestern dropped a hard-fought third match to Greensburg and placed second in its own Rebel Round-Robin volleyball season opener on Saturday.

When was your last well check ?

When did you last visit your medical provider for a check-up?

Well checks, even for adults, allow you and your provider to monitor your overall health, discuss immunizations and schedule important health screenings based upon your age, family history and recommended guidelines.

The good news: most insurance plans cover well checks once a year.

Now is the perfect time to reconnect.

Meals with friends cause miserly reaction

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: We're a group of about 10 over-60 high school friends who get together for brunch or dinner annually around Christmastime. "Ronnie" will always make the reservations, send out the details and grab the check. She'll simply divide for the number and ask everyone for that amount.

This most recent dinner, there were nine of us. The bill, before tip, came to $360. Many in the group had a drink, some ordered a second one, including top-shelf brands. Most had dessert. I don't drink much, and I'm not into dessert. I ordered an entree that cost $17. We were each asked to pay $55. Needless to say, when the check is split, those who spend the least get taken advantage of the most.

This time, I did express my displeasure to Ronnie, but she quickly shot me down. Nobody else said anything.

Look, if it's only a few dollars, I'm OK with easier math for everyone, but not when my share gets more than doubled. Mind you, I'm doing fine financially, so that's not the issue. I would never ask someone to pay more to subsidize my drinks and dessert.

Any thoughts on how to handle this for next year? I'm tempted to drop out or even say I'll only attend if we ditch the check splitting. — Split the Bill

Dear Split the Bill: I would bite your tongue and not say anything. It is a yearly occurrence, around the holidays, with friends you've known for at least the last 40 years. Much like giving birthday and Christmas presents, look at this dinner as a kind gesture from you to your friends because you enjoy their company. As finances are not your concern, weigh the pros and cons for yourself. Is saving $40 worth losing the memories you'd gain from attending the meal? Let this one go and focus your attention on the joy of being with your friends who you have known for so long. What a gift.

However, if this advice drives you nuts, you could always ask for a separate check. But don't be surprised if your friends start calling you Scrooge.

Putting daughters and girlfriend at odds

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: I'm 52 and have dated "Bob" for six years. We both have grown children. Last week, he said one of his two daughters "didn't think much of me." I like and socialize with them at family dinners.

I asked which one said that, but he refuses to tell me. This hurts, to say the least. What do you think? — Concerned in California.

Dear Concerned in California: I think Bob is very insensitive. To make a blanket statement about someone (even if it is his daughter) not liking you is mean and juvenile. By refusing to say which daughter it is, he is creating a situation in which you will distrust both of them. There is something nasty about this.

Now, if you did something that upset one of his daughters, that could be a different story. You could talk about it and work through things. Of course, this hurtful statement of unknown origin is going to make you feel sad and defensive during these family dinners.

Rather than being resigned to this situation, press Bob on why he would say something like that. Six years is a long time, and if you are going to continue your relationship, you must be with a partner who is more considerate of your feelings and who is willing to work things out by communicating directly.

Dear Annie: I was always under the impression that when invited to stay somewhere, guests did not need to bring anything. They should just enjoy being a guest. There was a recent letter where a man asks for his guests to bring a gift. I think that is tacky.

Sure, he has worked hard to get his property and now wants to invite "guests" over. He never said "friends," but guests shouldn't have to pay their duties to him. He may as well be running a hotel; then the guests would be paying for beach towels and food.

I hope he enjoys his new lake house quietly and alone. I certainly wouldn't go there after reading his letter. — Guests or Friends

Dear Guests or Friends: You make an interesting point, but I think you're being a little rigid. Giving a gift to a host or bringing food to share with a group is a kind gesture. It makes both the host and the guest feel good. But of course, you are correct that being obligated to give a gift in order to be invited is something else entirely. I wouldn't blame you for staying away.

Dear Annie: The letter from the grandpa who never leaves the house without his handkerchief made me smile. My 28-year-old daughter with Down syndrome suffers from seasonal allergies, so she never knows when she might let go with a big sneeze. She has carried a thin-sized handkerchief, handed down from her dad, since she started going to school. She likes the men's size because they are thinner and bigger than the ladies hankies I bought her. So, you are right, they are for everyone, not just men. — Ellen's Mom

Dear Ellen's Mom: Thank you for your letter. Your daughter sounds wonderful, and so do you.
